New Wonders of Natural Science

Industrial Changes Follow Closely in the Wake of Chemical Experiments—Sources of Cheap Power Envisaged—

Shorter Working Week on Way

Recent years have witnessed a remarkable growth in the application of chemical science to industry, and the progress which has been made in this direction during the present century is probably unparalleled in the history of the world. Not only have many entirely new industries been created, but the methods employed in many of the older industries have undergone a complete change, and in almost every case the change has been in the direction of greater efficiency and economy. The result has been a very substantial increase in the standard of living of the people as a whole.

Recent developments in the chemical industry have been of a particularly striking character, and have opened up possibilities which, only a few years ago, would have been regarded as fantastic in the extreme. Many of these developments have been the result of researches undertaken in the laboratories of the great industrial combines, which have been established in order to ensure that the fullest advantage is taken of the results of scientific research in the application of chemical science to industry. Some of the most important of these developments are briefly described in the following paragraphs.

Recovery Process

The President has before him the complete report of this board concerning the new process for the production from by-products of benzol, a motor fuel which is claimed to be superior to petrol in many respects. The Government has already decided to purchase the entire output of benzol which can be produced in this country during the next six years in accordance with the provisions of the Motor Spirit (Use and Regulation) Act, and it is understood that the Government intends to erect a plant for the production of benzol on a site adjacent to the Royal Ordnance Factory at Queensferry, Flintshire.

Mayor Indicts U.S. on 40 Per Cent Rise

Puts U.S. out of Red

For First Time in 34 Months the Revenue Pushes Government Into the Black and Eases the National Position Currently

Is Hailed by Congressional Leaders

As Marking End of the Depression, Say Leaders

Loans From Federal Agencies Taper Off as Income Tax Receipts for the Year 31 Days Indicate

$351,284,262 as Against $530,348,680 Last Year

Special from The Christian Science Monitor Bureau

WASHINGTON, April 5—Revenue from income taxes in March amounted to 40 per cent more than it did a year ago, and bursting the Government into the black for the first time in 34 months.

The lead in income tax collections was immediately hailed by Congressional leaders as "the end of the depression," and marking increased business, higher profits and an easier national position generally.

Meanwhile loans from Government agencies continued to taper off. At the end of February, which covers the calendar-month period for income tax collections, the Government had $1,775,150,852.84 less than at the end of January. And the total deficit was $2,884,888,553.88 less than at the end of February, 1931.

Treasury Department data to be published tomorrow will show that March receipts from income taxes will be even greater than those of February, it is believed.

Secretary of State Indicated

The Secretary of State indicated that the Government into the black for the first time in 34 months was a result more of boom in a new year

Willpuff Company Workers Walk Out

WORCESTER, Mass., April 3 (AP)—The 400 employees of the Willpuff Woolen Company walked out on strike upon an hour after reporting for work this morning, this being the first day of operation of mills controlled and operated by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Willpuff, Massachusetts, East Douglas and Ternkin.

The action of the Willpuff employees today was unexpected as they had accepted a substantial proportion of the wage cuts which the corporation had announced a week ago in attempting to keep the mill in operation when other mills throughout the country were closing down.

Workers in other departments are particularly bitter that the corporation did not be able to handle all the work offered by the various departments.

Anti-Mullet Betting

ANDREAS, Mass., April 1 (AP)—A bill to prohibit betting on mullet races was enacted by both branches of the Maine House of Representatives today and sent to the Senate for enactment.

The House vote came after a debate in which opponents of the measure who said it was a "joke bill," ridiculed the measure, while its supporters argued that it was a "serious" measure which would not deal the sport any additional handicap.

The bill provided for abolishment of betting on mullet races, which have been declared by its proponents.

A fine of $100 to $500 is provided for violation of every 15 minutes.

Connecticut Champions Fly Visit to Washington

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Visits to the Washington monument and the Capitol were on today's schedule for the Connecticut (Conn.) High School basketball champions.

A flat more efficient police force for Boston could be worked out, the present said, by increasing the compensation given policemen, Senator Parkman was of the opinion.

Senator Parkman was of the opinion that a less complex more by-laws and a more flexible administration would be possible.

Chief of Police Crowley, Boston's police commissioner, in a statement to the Senate committee, declared that the police force was undermanned, and that it would be necessary to increase the force by 300 to 400 men.

Crowley described as unnecessary the proposal that "numbers" increase in proportion to every 1.1% increase in population.

Boll Measures Ready for Quick Action, With Main Differences to Be Ironed Out in Later Conference on Method of Taxation

Special from The Christian Science Monitor Bureau

WASHINGTON, April 5 — The simultaneous committee conferences on minor details of the tax bill, which will be started today in advance of the full two days of debate on the measure, are expected to bring the bill to the floor of the Senate by the end of this week.

The special committee of the Senate, headed by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, will meet at 10 o'clock this morning to consider the sections of the bill relating to the taxation of corporations. The House Ways and Means Committee, headed by Representative Hawley of Oregon, will meet at 11 o'clock to consider the sections relating to the taxation of individuals.

Both committees will work in executive session, and it is expected that they will be able to complete their work on the bill in from two to three days. Then the bill will be reported to the Senate, where it is expected that it will be debated for a week or ten days before it is passed.

The Brotherhood of Man

Written for The Christian Science Monitor

IN NO WAY is the aim of Christian Science more clearly stated than in the words "brotherly love." Its followers are constantly striving to express more of this love in their daily lives, and to feel it toward all mankind. Such love is the basis of true prayer, and it is the healing power of Christian Science treatment. Its followers are constantly learning that they must love their neighbor as themselves, and that they must forgive others their trespasses if they would be forgiven their own sins. Love is the fulfilling of the law, and the Christian Scientist is trying to fulfill it.

That the consummation of this brotherhood of man is coming, that it is, in fact, one of the chief aims of Christian Science is attested by the numerous testimonies of healing which appear in the Christian Science periodicals. Many of these testimonies are from persons who have been healed of sin, as well as of sickness. Many are from persons who have been healed of both sin and sickness. Many are from persons who have been healed of enmity toward their fellow men, and who have learned to love their enemies. Many are from persons who have been healed of race hatred, and who have learned to love those of other races. Many are from persons who have been healed of class hatred, and who have learned to love those of other classes. Many are from persons who have been healed of religious bigotry, and who have learned to love those of other religions. Many are from persons who have been healed of national hatred, and who have learned to love those of other nations. Many are from persons who have been healed of the fear of death, and who have learned to love life. Many are from persons who have been healed of the fear of life, and who have learned to love death. Many are from persons who have been healed of the fear of poverty, and who have learned to love riches. Many are from persons who have been healed of the love of riches, and who have learned to love poverty. Many are from persons who have been healed of the love of self, and who have learned to love others. Many are from persons who have been healed of the love of others, and who have learned to love self. Many are from persons who have been healed of the love of sin, and who have learned to love righteousness. Many are from persons who have been healed of the love of righteousness, and who have learned to love sin.

Love is the fulfilling of the law, and Christian Science is the fulfilling of love. Love is the basis of all true prayer, and it is the basis of all true healing. Love is the basis of all true living. Love is the basis of all true religion. Love is the basis of all true science. Love is the basis of all true philosophy. Love is the basis of all true metaphysics. Love is the basis of all true theology. Love is the basis of all true Christian Science. Love is the basis of all true brotherhood of man.

No Dollars From Texas to Read; So She Writes One

Special to The Christian Science Monitor

Dear Editor:

Each time, on receiving the usual of the Monitor containing the entertaining page, I look eagerly for the letters in the Hobby Column and then sigh with disappointment; the letters are almost on the side of the desert; mostly from city folk, I suppose, who have the time and inclination to write to each other. Our territory is away out in the country; we do not have the privilege of writing to each other, as we are too busy. We do not even have the time to read the letters in the Hobby Column, but I enjoy the page very much when I do get a chance to read it.

I hope my selected title to write to will be interested in Texas and Texas ranches and home builders and how we live out here. Texas ranchers are still—Editor.

We hope so too. Miss M. and it more

Why Birds Love This Garden

By Frances Carter Towne

Special to The Christian Science Monitor

"How warm this notice I heat," a friend who visited in two gardens in Alhambra, Calif., said. "There were three birds in the one near the house and none from every direction. Indeed, it was true. There were calls and songs and chirps and trills from all the trees and bushes and vines. Not ten minutes passed that I did not hear a bird singing or calling. I was delighted with the chorus and the beauty of the birds themselves, but I was also puzzled. Why should there be so many birds in one garden and none in the other? Both gardens were well kept, both had trees and shrubs and vines, both had lawns and flowers. Why, then, should the birds prefer one to the other?

"I thought and thought about it, and finally I decided that the birds must like the one garden better because it had more trees and shrubs and vines. So I planted more trees and shrubs and vines in my garden, and now I have a bird chorus, too."

Her friend's garden was a delight. Its owner had made it a bird sanctuary. Trees and shrubs and vines of many kinds had been planted, and there was a pool of water in the center. Instead of a fence, a hedge of privet and barberry bushes surrounded the garden. Here and there were feeding stations and bird houses.

Alhambra is in the San Gabriel Valley, at the foot of the mountains of the San Gabriel range, a few miles east of Los Angeles. Its gardens are famous for their beauty, and many of them are open to the public on certain days. Among the gardens which I visited was one which I shall never forget. It was the garden of Mrs. Ralph Chandler, and it was a bird sanctuary.

Mrs. Chandler has lived in Alhambra for many years, and she has watched the birds in her garden increase in number and variety. She has studied their habits and their needs, and she has made her garden a delightful place for them to live in.

Mrs. Chandler's garden is not large, but it is filled with trees and shrubs and vines. Many of the trees are very old, and they are the favorite perching places of the birds. Some of the shrubs are thick and bushy, and they are the favorite nesting places of the birds. Some of the vines are trained over trellises and arbors, and they provide shade for the birds.

Mrs. Chandler has a number of bird houses in her garden, and they are all occupied. Some of them are in the trees, some are on the fence posts, and some are on the arbors. Each bird house is of a different size and shape, and each is suited to the needs of the bird that is to occupy it.

Mrs. Chandler has a number of bird baths in her garden, and they are filled with fresh water every day. Some of the baths are on pedestals, and some are on the ground. Some are deep, and some are shallow. Each bird has the bath that suits it best.

Mrs. Chandler has a number of feeding stations in her garden, and they are filled with food every day. Some of the stations are on pedestals, and some are on the ground. Some are covered, and some are open. Each bird has the food that it likes best

New-Old Tale of Women's Cries

Educated Men Realize Need of Educated Homemakers

Special from The Christian Science Monitor Bureau

NEW YORK

INDIAN women men of the Punjab have advanced greatly, according to Miss Isabella T. McNeil, president of Kinnaird College for Women at Lahore, India. Miss McNeil, who is visiting the United States for the first time, is the guest of the Northfield Conferences.

"Education is the great need of India's women," declares Miss McNeil. "An Indian social reformer has said, 'The education of a single girl means the uplifting of a whole family.' Women are the pupils of a larger teacher than the educator of a single man. Women are the priceless of the home.

"Since women reformers never do what they can never do what they ought, education is the solution of India's problems. Women's education is the only thing that will change the ideals of the people. Many Indian women are well as the foreign at the early age of 15 or 16 years, and then they are lost to the world. Their husbands are not common pal the companion they have always dreamed of. Many of these girls are married before they are 10 years old. Child marriage is a common evil. Child—Christians. At Kinnaird the pupils are mainly Mohammedans, Hindus, and Christians. Miss McNeil is just now visiting the colleges. Every year in March colleges close and examinations are held. Then the girls go to their homes for the summer vacation. Many of these girls are not allowed to go to school. Their parents do not believe in education for girls. Many of the girls are married at the age of 12 years. Their husbands are often much older than they are. Many of these girls are not allowed to go to school. Their parents do not believe in education for girls. Many of the girls are married at the age of 12 years. Their husbands are often much older than they are.
